Q: How do I delete a file that already exists? I am writing a proof of concept for a 3-component program that I would like to have a health test run. The program creates a file, saves it, then reads the file and displays a success or error message. If the program fails during the test, it should write a failure log to the health test folder (which is the default), but, the file already exists. So I receive the following exception when trying to delete the file. Error using delete Index is out of bounds.

A: You can delete a file directly if the directory in which it resides doesn't have other files/directories with the same name. If the directory has the file, you need to delete a directory `delete("mydirectory");` Regarding your example, this shouldn't be the case. You probably should have to create a new file with the same name?

Q: Cordova Camera plugin in Blackberry browser redirecting to the android app I have to develop a cross platform app using Cordova and Phonegap. the app is working fine on android and iOS but not in blackberry browser,It is redirecting to the android app. this is a link where i used to test the app in Blackberry browser.

A: In your config.xml file, you have to edit the platform as below. Using native blackberry code we can understand cordova better.

Nucleoside diphosphate kinase from wheat germ. VIII. Isolation of a homogeneous enzyme. A procedure was devised to purify nucleoside diphosphate kinase (NDPK) from germinating wheat grains to homogeneity. To this end, crude NDPK was subjected to affinity chromatography on an aprotic polymer of 2-hydroxypropylmethacrylate. The isolated protein was highly pure and
