The vacuum extraction of the fetus is widely used as a second-line method of delivery in cases of failed vaginal delivery. The authors report the delivery of a child by this technique. A 36-year old woman, para II, bicornuate uterus, presenting with an acute abdomen was treated surgically and the fetus was delivered by means of vacuum extraction of the fetus by the husband using his abdominal muscles. The newborn weighing 2270 grams was not delivered in the course of labor, but the placenta was delivered spontaneously soon after birth. One hour later the skin was sutured and the abdominal wound was irrigated and left open. A foetal heart pattern was found by ultrasound examination and the newborn was moved to the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit. The Apgar scores were 6 and 10 at the 1st and 5th minutes, respectively. The newborn was discharged on the 9th day after birth. The authors present f30f4ceada
