literatureShe said of Alain Ducasse's restaurant in Hong Kong: "It's the best restaurant I've ever been in, and I've been to the best." Currently at the top of Ms. Gordon's to-do list is a $135-a-night Hong Kong apartment. "I can't afford a $135-a-night apartment," she said, "and I can't do it at my age." When she is ready to get married, she said, that is where she plans to run up some debt. “I’ll tell my friends not to ask where I live.” She hopes to become a New York “society lady,” she said. Yet the print might have serious long-term savings implications. Based on an analysis in The New York Times of 2016 Census Bureau data, Ms. Gordon’s decision to move may prompt her to stop sending in paper tax returns, and simply file electronically. On a recent evening, Mr. David, the cameraman, pulled up to a Manhattan Soup restaurant in South Slope, Brooklyn, and a dozen patrons — mostly students and mothers with strollers — waited outside. Mr. David, a fitness buff with long, salt-and-pepper hair and a trim mustache, took video of the patrons before entering. While his video camera was running, he directed them toward the table and took some of their order. Then he filmed their eating. Mr. David said the trend toward more automated photo and video capturing was a natural progression in the media business, given that the bulk of his work is on the computer.

“We’ve seen it happen to newspapers and magazines and radio,” he said. The industry “has been primed for this trend since the invention of the camera.” and limited awareness of this response. We could see how this phenomenon of the ‘mood-first’ response would be helpful in a
